Summer Masterclass in Italy

Visual Storytelling Build your vision through stills, motion and sound

Turin | 6 – 29 July | 2022

Application deadline

May 31, 2022

What does it mean to make effective and meaningful visual stories in the year 2022?

This summer's Masterclass challenges photographers to address the social or emotional space of people and the places they inhabit while providing them with the media tools necessary to make compelling and impactful visual stories.

Through fieldwork, critiques, and the honing of editorial and technical skills, this intensive program encourages a collaborative environment where participants engage in meaningful dialogue to broaden their way of working and seeing. Our aim is to produce content that has depth and substance while experimenting with the complimentary tools of audio, video, and text. Using Turin as a sketchpad, students will consider various strategies for photographing in the field while contemplating how a group of photographs seen in concert with one another and in conjunction with other media can create an affective narrative.

Participants will gain a deeper understanding of their personal motivation and unique perspectives. Some students will emerge from the month with a video or an essay of still images, while others will weave multiple mediums together and explore new ways to push the boundaries of visual practice via interactive web-design or book layout.

Instruction on imaging software, and trends in visual storytelling will be addressed.

This Masterclass is designed to be an immersive experience.

On the days classes do not meet students are expected to be out in the field gathering material for their projects.

We hope to build a supportive community that encourages creative inquiry, experimentation, and the commitment to create articulate visual stories about the world.

Students will have the option to collaborate on stories or work on individual projects.

Though the most effective experience will be to partake in the entire program, students can choose to participate in any two sequential weeks separately.

Students who attend the entire month-long program receive a certificate of completion for the ICP-CAMERA Masterclass as well as acceptance to one of ICP's full-time One Year Certificate Program.

At the completion of the program, three outstanding student projects created during the month, will be awarded with a 1.000€ prize*.

The awarded projects will be selected by a committee composed by representatives of ICP and CAMERA. Awarding ceremony on July 29.

*Must participate in all four weeks of the Masterclass

COURSE DESCRIPTION

MODULE.1 FRAMING IDEAS AND ACQUIRING BEST PRACTISES

In the first module, students will define what “sense of place” means in a photograph and develop a deeper understanding of what it takes to tell stories about the social landscape. In search of narratives, be they personal, political, or metaphoric, participants will start to lay the framework for building successful visual stories. A strong emphasis will be placed on honing the digital workflow skills of Adobe Lightroom. This training will encourage best practices and efficient use of the post- production tools of Adobe software needed to complete this masterclass. Lectures on ethics and storytelling will support picture-making.

Goal:

Explore what it means to illuminate a sense of a place within a photograph and gain advanced workflow skills.

Requirements:

A digital camera.

An updated version of the Adobe suite loaded onto laptop prior to attending the Masterclass.

An external hard drive is needed to archive all vital digital elements.

MODULE.2 STORIES IN THE SOCIAL LANDSCAPE | STILLS, MOTION AND SOUND

This module focuses on fieldwork and the tools and strategies needed to build visual stories. Confronting what it means to create meaningful portraits about the human experience students will develop stories. The first part of the module will solidify their understanding of the meanings found within the individual photograph. As the week progresses audio and video basics will be introduced. Students will be encouraged to work across media platforms as they commit to a project they will focus on for the duration of the Masterclass.

Goal:

Learn how to photograph people while telling visual stories about the human experience.

Gain an understanding of shooting video and sound recording.

Requirements:

Proficiency with Adobe Lightroom software; students must have a working knowledge of Lightroom before the Module begins.

A digital camera that is video capable (if interested in shooting video).

An updated version of the Adobe suite loaded onto their laptops.

An external hard drive is needed to archive all vital digital elements.

*Audio recorders and headphones can be loaned for the class

MODULE.3 CREATING STORIES AND MIXING MEDIA

The third module focuses on building stories from the material students have captured out in the field and working with post-production tools. Time will be spent out shooting and back on campus editing and critiquing work. Video editing instruction will help hone the skills of those that want to work on several media platforms. InDesign and Interactive Web Templates will be introduced. Some students may choose to work collaboratively in the same location on a related story, while others may work independently.

Goal:

Creating visual stories in the contemporary world through still photography, video, books, and more.

Requirements:

Proficiency with Adobe Premier Pro and Lightroom and InDesign software, and/or have completed tutorials in Premier Pro and InDesign before the week begins.

Updated versions of the Adobe Suite loaded onto their laptops before the class begins.

An external hard drive to archive of all vital elements needed to complete a multimedia story.

Basic understanding of Zoom recorder and headphones and shooting. Please bring same-sized printed imagery (inexpensive machine quality prints – roughly 10/15cm.); digital archive of all files, still, video, and/or audio.

MODULE. 4 EDITING IT ALL TOGETHER

The final week is about building on tools and content to create compelling visual stories. The power of the sequence, the craft of multimedia editing, and the aesthetic choices of how to work with innovative media will be considered. Some participants will build traditional photographic narratives seen as prints in a sequence, or as a book/zine, while others will make short videos, or work with a multitude of highbred tools combining still images, audio, text, video, and website platforms. Ultimately, students will be asked to consider what material and tools best articulate the type of story they want to create. The week will culminate with an exhibition/slide show presentation of participants completed work.

Goal:

Learn the craft of putting a visual story together.

Requirements:

Students must have a working knowledge of Adobe Lightroom, Premiere Pro, and InDesign

An updated version of Adobe Suite loaded onto their laptops before the class begins.

Students must bring an external hard drive archive of all vital elements to complete a multimedia story.
